

MRS. RAPHAEL PASSED AWAY THIS MORNING

WAS DEVOTED WIFE OF REV. VICTOR L. RAPHAEL, PRESBYTERIAN PASTOR.

SERIOUSLY ILL ONE MONTH

Community Suffers Great Loss In Her Passing. Vast Circle of Friends Left Behind.

Mrs. Victor L. Raphael, passed away at the Manse at a quarter of six o'clock Friday morning, following an illness of a month's duration. On December 29, she suffered a breakdown and declined rapidly until her death.

There was an unusual co-incidence in her death, as it came on the eleventh anniversary of their moving into the Manse, and on the same day of the week and month.

Mrs. Raphael, the daughter of Francis Marion and Lovisa Tamor Wolf, was born in Cincinnati, O. At about 3 years of age the family moved to Pleasant Ridge, a suburb of the city, where she was educated in the public, elementary, and high schools. Upon graduation from the latter she prepared for a business career, entering and completing Miller's business college. For some years she was secretary to the editor of the Christian Standard Publishing Co. Then followed a longer period of time when she was in charge of the office of the Creaghead Electrical Engineering Co. While in this position through her activity in Hamilton county C. E. she met Rev. V. L. Raphael of Rochester, N. Y., who was at that time located in Cincinnati as a salesman. They were married Dec. 16, 1909, and went to Rochester to make their home. She made a place for herself in Central Church Sunday school and Christian Endeavor.

Because of her ambitions that her husband enter the ministry, she insisted upon his abandoning his business life. In 1911 they moved to Berea, Ky., in order to finish college. The three years spent in the environment of this institution were a baptism of power in fitting them for the work which they were to share together. She became the friend of hundreds of young people who have perpetuated that relation through the passing years. During the three years that followed while Mr. Raphael was at Lane Theological Seminary they made their home with her mother and later in Pleasant Ridge while she took an active part in the Seventh Presbyterian Church where her husband was assistant pastor.

She was never satisfied with her attainments educationally. She constantly sought to improve herself and kept abreast of the times. Latin and French were a great source of inspiration to her. For a number of years she carried on the French correspondence of a prominent concern in her home city. Of a deeply religious nature she gave her time throughout her whole life to the field of religious education. Before her marriage she completed the diploma course in the Hamilton County Teachers' Training Institute. During her seven years' residence in this city, commencing Jan. 25, 1918, she acted as her field of labor for the children and young people of the church. She was a pioneer in the county in the Big Four religious Education, meeting the boys and girls every Thursday afternoon in the Jr. C. E. society. Sunday evenings, at 6:30, she was an advisor of the High School young people known as the Tuxis group.

During a period of more than five years as superintendent of the Sunday School, which office she relinquished to others several times only to be called back to serve again, she had larger quarters for the classes and she succeeded in interesting the church in the erection of the educational and social building in 1923, the Sunday School part of which was named by her and adopted by the church. She next sought to decentralize the classes with their worship programs. The first step was the setting up of the cradle roll, beginners and primary children one unit. In time the latter were made a department by themselves.

line for her work in the Sunday School because practically nothing printed existed until recent years.

For the last four years she had been secretary of Missionary Education in Indianapolis Presbyterian and had been commended many times by the Board of Church Education for her zeal and results. She had been a member of Greenfield Board of Religious Education since its beginning in 1924.

Not a club woman although many had sought her membership; preferring to devote her time and strength to her home and church. Although without the title and election she was really the assistant secretary of the Rotary Club as she helped to edit the "Hub & Sprocket" bulletin every Monday night for three years.

She attended schools of religious education nearly every other year, having been at Wooster College, O., on two occasions, at Winona Lake, and at Auburn, N. Y., Theological Seminary.

She was a gracious hostess to all who came to "The Manse." Her interest in the college students, made them feel at home.

Children's parties twice a year were started in the church under her supervision.

Mrs. Raphael believed that her actions spoke better than words and her work here will forever be a monument to her splendid character. No pastor ever had better help or more loyal aid in his work than Rev. Raphael had from Mrs. Raphael. Her work in the church and in the Sunday School was ever foremost in her daily work. Her well trained mind and her devotion to the work made that of Mr. Raphael more successful, especially in the directing the religious education of the youth in the church.

The transformation of the Sunday School from a one room school to a departmentalized school, the increase of the enrollment of scholars, the quality of the work done by teachers and pupils, in the Presbyterian church here during the past eleven years, was largely due to the work of Mrs. Raphael and Mr. Raphael. The increased work done by the church and Sunday School under Rev. and Mrs. Raphael has placed this church, when the size of the congregation is taken into consideration, in line with the largest and most effective churches in the country.

Mrs. Raphael delighted in mingling with not only the active working members of the church, but soon after coming here began a close association with Presbyterian students in DePauw University, and even though many have been gone for years, they continued this association and those who have gone out into the work of the world, will always remember the companionship they enjoyed while a resident of Greencastle, with Rev. and Mrs. Raphael.

Mrs. Raphael's devotion to her work was no less than that to her husband, and his interests were always her interests and she worked for the love of the work and the results she achieved in eleven years spent in Greencastle will be felt for the betterment of those who came in contact with her for generations to come.

In the death of Mrs. Raphael, the church and the community have suffered a loss that will be felt for years, but the good accomplished during a comparatively short lifetime will in a way make up for the loss that has resulted.

Funeral services will be held Monday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock from the Presbyterian church. The body will be taken to Cincinnati on the Big Four train at 5:04 o'clock the same afternoon. Interment will be in the Pleasant Ridge Cemetery at 10:30 o'clock Tuesday morning. Miss L. DeMarge Wolf, a sister and the only member of the family, arrived here this afternoon, from her home in Cincinnati.

The plaintiff asks the custody of their three children: Murry L., Norman L., and George T. Townshend.

INCREASE ON GASOLINE TAX IS APPROVED

ROADS COMMITTEE OF LEGISLATURE FAVORS 1-CENT GAS TAX RAISE.

INDIANAPOLIS, Jan. 25 (UP)—A one cent gasoline tax increase bore approval today of the roads committee of the house of representatives, while the Cantwell bill for a Universal driver's license and compulsory liability and property damage insurance was slated for withdrawal.

Responding to the committee's recommendation that a four cent gasoline tax was more acceptable than four and a half, representative Lewis C. Carter, of Salem, promised to amend his bill by cutting the proposed increase from a cent and a half to one cent even, and to prepare another measure raising license fees for heavy passenger cars, commercial trucks and busses.

The one cent boost would yield about $4,000,000 of the $5,000,000 or $6,000,000 the highway department wants added to its road building revenues, a request approved by Governor Harry G. Leslie. Carter's license bill will offer a plan for raising approximately $1,500,000 additional revenue.

Withdrawal of the bill introduced by Rep. Thomas A. Cantwell, of Terre Haute, for compulsory automobile insurance was asked by chairman Oliver P. Lafuze, of the roads committee, when the group found, upon inspecting the measure, that its author was making 100 many unrelated proposals in the bill. Not only did the bill require a universal chauffeur's license of every automobile driver, and compulsory insurance but wound up by making fine and sentence mandatory on conviction of drunken driving.

1702 PLATES SOLD

With five "shopping days" left until the 1929 license plates must be on all cars in the state only 1526 passenger car owners and 176 truck owners, have purchased their new plates in this county.

The new licenses can be purchased at the local branch at the Franklin Street Garage. Last year nearly four thousand plates were sold in this county.

A GOOD PROFIT

A Greencastle township farmer sold 29 lambs on the Indianapolis market Thursday for $16 per hundred. He bought them at the same market on October 11, at $11.

This farmer who kept a careful check on the cost, the feed, and other expenses reported a net profit on the 29 lambs of $125, which is a high per centage of profit in a few months time.

SHUMAKER MUST SERVE 60-DAY TERM

JUDGE BALTZELL RULES IN ANTI-SALOON LEAGUE CHIEF'S CASE.

ALL MOTIONS OVERRULED

Judge Remands Shumaker To Custody Of Sheriff. Can Appeal To Higher U. S. Court.

INDIANAPOLIS, Jan. 25. (UP)—Judge Robert C. Baltzell, today remanded the Rev. E. S. Shumaker, superintendent of the Indiana anti-saloon league to the custody of the sheriff of the State Supreme Court to serve his sixty day sentence on the Indiana State Farm for contempt of supreme court.

The Judge overruled Shumaker's petition for a writ of Habeas corpus to prevent the sheriff from taking him to the farm on the ground the state supreme court violated his United States constitutional rights in holding him guilty and in recommending him after Governor Ed Jackson had pardoned him last September.

The court handed attorneys copies of his decision and advised them to return this afternoon with any motions they desire to make.

The decision apparently means that unless Shumaker appeals to a higher Federal court he is at the mercy of supreme court.

Shumaker looked over the shoulder of a reporter who was examining the Clerk's copy of the decision, read the sentence at the end remanding him to the custody of Sheriff William L. Resoner and ejaculated: "O My!"

The Supreme court found Shumaker guilty and committed him to the farm and fined him $250 last fall after legal maneuvering lasting two years. Shumaker paid the fine and started to the Farm with the supreme court sheriff but was released within a few hours upon a pardon issued by the then Governor Ed Jackson.

Arthur L. Gilliom, then attorney General, immediately moved the supreme court to order Shumaker back to the farm to complete the sentence on the ground the Governor usurped power in issuing the pardon.

The supreme court early in December held that Shumaker must serve the sentence. Shumaker exhausted a few technical moves and then went to Federal court.

Judge Baltzell ruled against Shumaker on all four of the major points he raised against the supreme court's power to imprison him.

He ruled the supreme court had original jurisdiction to cite Shumaker for contempt in a case of this kind; that the court had the right to hear the evidence and sentence him; that Ed Jackson, then Governor, had no power to pardon Shumaker, and that the fact the supreme court did not order the dry leader back to the farm to complete his sentence until after the calendar term of 60 days had expired made no difference.

Ethan A. Miles, attorney for the League, announced he was undecided as to the next step and would make no move until he had conferred with James Bingham, Sr., Shumaker's attorney, who is out of the city.

BEN HARRISON PREACHED IN HEBRON CHURCH

VISITED WHERE WHITMAN NICHOLS KILLING TOOK PLACE LAST YEAR.

NEAR PIGEON ROOST SCHOOL

Close To East Putnam County Line. Well Known To Putnam County Citizens.

The killing of Ora Whitman by Wm. Nichols, which a Hendricks county jury last week pronounced justifiable, occurred on the old Ross farm, where Charles and Neeley Ross lived a half-century ago. The former had two sons, David and Andrew. The Rosses were a well-known family, having many acquaintances in eastern Putnam, but the main point here is that they were living on that farm when Benjamin Harrison came out from Indianapolis, in 1872, and preached in the old pioneer Presbyterian church known as Hebron. It is yet standing and is about a mile west of the Ross farm, across the fields. It is not far from the Putnam county line and is a familiar structure to all of the people living in the eastern part of this county.

The Hebron church stands on the west side of the road which leads north from the Greencastle-Stilesville road, just east of the Johnson farm, where the collie dogs are bred. The edifice is a mile and a half north. Closer to the road but on the same acre, is the old-time Pigeon Roost school building, a small brick, that is now seriously decrepit. The church has been changed somewhat to accommodate it to the uses of a barn, but it has a severe divinity in its appearance that proclaims its history.

Lafe Newman, who lives a half mile north, told the writer that the Pigeon Roost appellation was due to passenger pigeons that formerly roosted in the forest trees surrounding the church. He remembered seeing the birds in considerable numbers. They are now extinct.

The writer happened to mention Tom Heavin to Mr. Newman. "He and I sat on the same seat in the old Pigeon Roost school," he said. Mr. Heavin was the first who told of the preaching trips by Benjamin Harrison.

"Harrison had become acquainted with the Ross family when they were members of a Presbyterian church in Indianapolis, where Mr. Harrison was a member. The Rosses invited him out to see them, after they moved to the farm, and Harrison visited them several times and preached in the old Hebron church."

"What sort of a man was Harrison then?" he was asked.

"He was the cleanest, neatest man you ever saw. He was not large, but he was a good dresser. He wasn't a great talker, with the grown folks, but he played with the children whenever he could, and had a good time with them."

"I don't know whether he was a licensed preacher or not, but he could preach, all right. What he said was always well worth listening to."

"That was the year of his campaign of the state for the Republicans against Blue Jeans Williams for Governor, and it may be that this preaching of his was a part of his campaigning."

It is quite a co-incidence that on that same Ross farm, Sam Ralston, who later became Governor of Indiana, also, was in his young manhood a laborer. His father lived on the National road, in Putnam county. The Ross house, honored by the visits of two later Governors, one of them becoming President, is an insignificant little place.

DISTRUST OF MATE LEADS TO TRAGEDY

MAN KILLS SON AND SELF. CONDITION OF WIFE, DAUGHTER SERIOUS.

SHOOTING AT AKRON, OHIO

George Thomas Goes Insane Following Quarrel. Attempts to Gouge Out Wife's Eyes.

AKRON, O., Jan. 25. (UP)—Believed temporarily insane, George Thomas, 30, shot and killed his four year old son, Robert, shot his two year old daughter as she lay in her crib, gouged his wife's eyes so badly she may be blind for life and then killed himself here last night.

The tragedy was the climax to a bitter quarrel—a dispute which has raged intermittently since the Thomases were married in Lorain, Ohio, Nov. 16, 1922, according to police.

The baby, Rose, is not expected to live. Little Robert died in his mother's arms. Thomas shot himself twice, then drank poison. He died six hours later, begging his wife for forgiveness.

Thomas' wife, Helen, 22, physicians said probably will be blind for life. She told a story of bitter strife, of constant marital turmoil caused by distrust.

Thomas was employed by the B. F. Goodrich Rubber Company and Mrs. Thomas worked for the Firestone Tire and Rubber Company.

"He wanted me to quit working," Mrs. Thomas said. "Countless times since we were married he has threatened to gouge out my eyes or disfigure me for life. Last night he seemed more jealous than ever."

"I loved him and the children. I would lay down my life for any of them but he would not trust me."

"I was playing the phonograph when I saw him come at me."

The record the young wife was playing was "You Can't Find Love Where There Ain't Any Love."

"He struck me several times, then grabbed me around the waist with one hand and with the other started to gouge my eyes," Mrs. Thomas continued.

"He threw me on the floor and kicked me several times and I lay still."

Little Robert aroused by the noise, peered affrightedly from behind a bedroom door.

Mrs. Thomas said her husband's rage became unbridled. He whipped out a gun and pursued the boy who ran back to his bed and crawled under the blankets.

Thomas pulled the boy out of bed and shot. Mrs. Thomas grabbed the baby up. He lay quiet in her arms.

Thomas ran to the living room where Rose was sleeping in her crib. Mrs. Thomas, on the verge of collapse, crawled out the front door and onto the icy lawn where a neighbor found her and called police.

FAREWELL BREAKFAST

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25. (UP)—President Coolidge gave a farewell breakfast to employees of congress today—the first time this has been done by any recent president.

The usual sausage and wheat cake breakfast, to which President Coolidge has invited virtually every member of congress was served.

Mrs. Coolidge leaned on the arm of the President last night and regretfully bade farewell to scores of friends gathered in the Blue Room of the White House at the final reception of the season, in honor of the army and navy.

The brilliant array of color in evening gowns, full dress uniforms and flowers could not down completely the atmosphere of sadness underneath.

PLANES SEEK NIMROD

PETOSKEY, Mich., Jan. 25. (UP)—Three airplanes circled over the ice floes of Lake Michigan today, searching for Lewis Sweet, Alanson fishing guide, believed adrift on a huge ice pack which was swept out from the mainland during a blizzard Tuesday night.

Two army planes, piloted by Lieut. Myron Elliott, and Lieut. Richard Cobb, of Selfridge Field, Mt. Clemens, Mich., scouted the solid ice sector off Temperance Point, the Straits of Mackinaw and circled around Hog Island, Crane Island, Garden and Big Islands. A commercial plane, piloted by Talbert Abrams, of Lansing, Mich., aided in the air search.

Lieut. Cobb's plane, equipped with skis, landed at Garden and Beaver Islands yesterday and sought traces of the missing fisherman. Residents of the islands reported they had seen no large ice fields.

Sweet was fishing Tuesday with Chester Lee, Petoskey, and Walter Scott, Alanson, on an ice formation off Crane Island. A blizzard came up suddenly. As the ice field separated from mainland, Lee and Scott leaped to the shore, but Sweet remained to "land just one more trout". He was carried swiftly out into the lake and was lost to sight in the storm.

"HAWK" FACES PRISON TERM

NOBLESVILLE, Ind., Jan. 25. (UP)—Wendell C. Hessong, 21, alias "The Hawk" faced a prison term of from one to five years today after being found guilty of blackmail and conspiracy by a jury in circuit court here.

Hessong together with Jack Montgomery, were indicted for sending threatening letters to several prominent Indiana persons demanding money. Montgomery will be arraigned tomorrow.

The state based its case a grand deal on a confession which Hessong made at the time of his arrest in Akron, O. He admitted sending letters to three men, signed "The Hawk" which threatened them with death and the bombing of their homes, if they did not leave a sum of money in the mail boxes of the country homes.

RABBI SPEAKS

Jesus Was a Jew, teaching Jewish doctrines; by a very fortunate chance of personality by the circumstances of doctrine to the world. The Jew is his life he became the spreader of that happy that his doctrine is spread.

even though not by himself." This was the essence of some statements by Rabbi Milton Steinberg who spoke last night at a meeting of the Oxford fellowship, held at the home of Dr. and Mrs. W. Vernon Lytle. Probably thirty persons attended the meeting.

Rabbi Steinberg is a very young man, with a lively personality, and his address was heard with much interest. He was graduated from Columbia university with the A. B. and A. M. degrees, and later attended a Jewish seminary for four years.

His subject was "The Jew and the New Testament, or, Pharisee Judaism."

"MY MAN," starring Fanny Grice, is a Warner Bros. picturization of this novel.

SYNOPSIS
Fanny Grice, a sewing girl in a theatrical costumers' shop, is raising her brother, Phil, and her selfish, pretty sister, Audrey, making every sacrifice for the girl. But Audrey leaves home to "live her own life." Lazarus, art director for Waldo, theatrical producer, hears Fanny sing and induces Waldo to hear her. The audition is interrupted and Fanny discovers Audrey's interest in Waldo. Heartbroken by this realization, Fanny fails in the final audition. On her way to work Fanny has seen a man demonstrating muscle builders. Months later she finds this man, Tom, now jobless, raiding her ice box. She feeds him.

CHAPTER VII—Continued
"Oh, I don't know," Fanny laughed. "Look what I got for being careless." She gesticulated toward the man, and then blushed at what she considered her own boldness. But she was supremely happy—happy to see that Tom took enough interest in her to think of her safety. Her heart went out to him, and she would have done anything in the world for him at that moment. It was a new sensation to her to have some one thinking about her that way. And she liked it, even more than she would admit to herself.

"Breakfast at seven."

"Nevertheless, you better lock it," Tom insisted. "That fire escape there's just an invitation, that's all."

"I suppose so," Fanny agreed, very docile. "Anyhow, I'll lock it after this. But, seriously, would you—like to stay here?"

"Listen, Miss Grice—that's right, ain't it?"

Fanny nodded.

"Listen, Miss Grice, I ain't in no position to pick and choose, but if I was, I wouldn't ask nothing more than just to park right here. You're pretty trustin' to take me in after what I done, but, believe me, I'll square it with ya."

"Have you got any idea about a job? Oh, I don't mean on—on account of the—the money," Fanny explained hurriedly, afraid of hurting Tom's feelings. "I mean, you—said you were looking for something, and—I wondered if I could, maybe, get you something where I am. I don't know—"

"Say, do ya think ya could?" Tom brightened up perceptibly. "I'm so sick of trampin' the streets."

"Well, I could speak to someone at the shop about it, and find out for you," Fanny promised.

"Say, would ya? Where'd ya work—I mean, what'd ya do?"

"I work at Thorpe's, Incorporated. They're theatrical costumers."

"Listen, I ain't no male model," Tom chorled.

"No—oh, no, I didn't mean that," Fanny giggled. "I meant maybe I could get you a job on the delivery trucks, or something like that—if you'd like it."

"Like it! Say, I'd like anything that was bringin' in the shekels. I never was cut out to be a bum. I don't like it. And, besides, I gotta pay you something if I'm gonna live here. You know, you're doin' me a big favor takin' me in, an' I ain't gonna forget it in a hurry."

"Oh, forget it," Fanny counseled.

"I'll ask someone about it first thing in the morning. And that reminds me, I got to get some beauty sleep. Do you know it's almost one o'clock?"

"No foolin'!" Tom looked at the clock. "Say, it is. Ya know, I been forgettin' all about time—I been doin' my watch, see, an' all hadda hock my watch, an' an' I'm movin' along when it got daylight."

"Well, look, you can have this room out here," Fanny motioned for the man to follow her, leading him out into the hallway and then to Audrey's empty bedroom.

After her sister had gone Fanny had cleaned the room and arranged the few things Audrey had left so that if, at anytime, the girl came back, the place would be much as she had left it. She had hated to look at the few trinkets and things Audrey had left—they made her too unhappy. But now she flung open the door joyously.

"This is my sister's room—the one that's away," she explained. "But it's a nice, light room."

"Sister, it looks like heaven to me," Tom nodded appreciatively. "But don't your sister ever wanna use it?"

"No—no," Fanny answered quickly. "You see, she don't come home to stay over night—just—just sometimes for Sunday, or something, and if she does want to stay she can sleep with me."

"Well, this is pretty swell," Tom looked about approvingly. "I ain't got my clothes with me, but I guess I can get 'em back from my landlady if I get some money an' pay her the rent I owe her."

"All right, Well, I'll say good night, Mr. Halsey. The—the bathroom's just down the hall where the light is, and breakfast's at seven. Do you want me to wake you?"

"Wake me for breakfast? Say, I'll bet I'm parked at that table at six, waitin' for you."

"Good night, Miss Grice, an'—an' thanks for everything."

And Fanny went to bed, and dreamed and dreamed—all sorts of plans, happier than she had been for months.

ROCKVILLE CUTS ITS CHAUTAUQUA

The Rockville Chautauqua Association at its annual meeting this week decided to reduce its annual chautauqua from ten to eight days. Reduced attendance caused the association to consider abandoning the chautauqua but it was decided to give it another year in the hope of building up new interest. The chautauqua will open Sunday, August 11th., and close Sunday, Aug. 18th.

(Jimmie)

Coach W. E. Bausman has at last decided upon a course of rigid discipline for the Greencastle high school basketball team.

For breaking training rules, Jimmie Tobin, floor guard, was dropped from the squad for the remainder of the season, and Raymond Brown, back guard, was let off until he changes his ways.

Fans in the business district were unanimous in the statement that this should have been done two months ago. But Bausman pleaded and worked with the boys and stood up for them until, as he put it, they failed to live up to their agreement.

Of course, the expelling of these two boys from the team will necessitate a shift in the lineup. But it is the general opinion down town that the Purple and Gray mentor will now have a group of boys that will fight, train and obey Bausman's orders even if they do not win another contest this season.

It takes courage on the part of a coach to "fire" two regulars but the fans as a whole are behind Bausman in the matter. In the long run, this should be a lesson to the boys who were expelled. It is not only for their own good that this action was necessary but for the sake of that splendid institution of learning that they were representing, G. H. S.

The Junior teams from Spencer, Crawfordsville and Brazil are coming here to win the invitational tourney at the Greencastle high school gym Saturday. But the Junior Cubs are not going to be idle and we look for a red hot tournament. The drawing for games will be held at 1 p. m. with the first tilt starting at 2. The second game will begin at 3 o'clock with the final battle at 8 p. m. A consolation scrap between the losers in the afternoon round will be played at 7 o'clock.

BRAZIL NEXT—FEB. 1!

We were talking to Bill Fox over at Rushville Wednesday evening and he said that Butler would beat DePauw as bad as they wanted to. We think "Shootin' 'Em" was wrong but the Tigers and Butler will clash at the Bull Dog field house tonight. We'll just wait and see how close Fox comes to his prediction.

Aleck only had about four columns on the Rushville-Greencastle game yesterday. Some of his "Hardwood Hash" follows:

FIVE LITTLE TIGER CUBS
(A Mother Goose Poem)

Five little Tiger Cubs,
Playing on the floor;
Levi stepped on one
Then there were four.

Four little Tiger Cubs,
Happy as could be;
Shepher shot one through the net,
Then there were three.

Three little Tiger Cubs,
Didn't know what to do;
Brecheisen dribbled through them,
Then there were two.

Two little Tiger Cubs,
Having little fun;
Tried to shoot some Lions,
Then there was one.

One little Tiger Cub,
Wished that he was dead;
Said a teeny-weeny prayer,
And crawled into his bed.

If Rushville fans don't consider that game last night a feather in the Lions' caps, then there are no feathers to be had for the Lions this year. Greencastle, heralded and sung as an outstanding team in the state, lost to Rushville via straight basketball 38-32.

We had heard before of a team that could uncork a last minute drive and pull a game out of the fire by sinking baskets in rapid-fire order but until last night we had not seen this phenomenon. We got to see it, AND HOW! Boys, if we wore a hat, it would be off to you!

Which made it nice all around. We had three guests with us last night. Jimmy Zeis of the Greencastle Banner was here to help carry home the bacon that never materialized, there was William Fox of the Indianapolis

News, otherwise known as "Shootin' 'Em," and we had Mr. Scott of the News who made the crosses and circles in the scorebook for Mr. Fox. It was a very pleasant evening all around.

There were a number of other visitors here for the contest. There was Coach Frank Pruitt formerly of Bainbridge and now of Greensburg, and his entire Greensburg team was present as Greensburg plays Greencastle at Greencastle soon and already have a one-point victory over the Tiger Cubs.

Greencastle went over to Rushville and put up a mighty fine game although the Tiger Cubs had the short-end of a 38 to 32 score. Both teams must have played on the theory that a good offense is the best defense.—"B. B. Shots", Brazil Times.

You're wrong—Greencastle didn't have either.

Held In Clutch Of Rheumatism For Seven Years

Happy Lady, Now Freed of All Suffering By Modern Konjola, Gives It High Praise.

MRS. W. B. WILLIAMS

"For seven long years I was forced to endure the ravages of rheumatism and kidney trouble and until Konjola was brought into my life I never knew a minute's relief," said Mrs. W. B. Williams, Martinsville, Indiana.

"Pains like sudden electric shocks, ran through my body, day and night. It was as if a plague had struck me. My ankles, knees, arms and feet were affected. Walking or housework was extreme agony. Frequent bladder action forced me to rise at all hours of the night. My back was sore and ached with foreboding of constant suffering."

"When my case became almost unbearable I decided to give Konjola a chance to help me although I had little faith. What a blessing it is that I did. Right from the start I was benefited. Rheumatic pains grew fainter and less severe. I wouldn't think of missing a dose and today I am free of all my suffering. I sleep all right, every night. My back is relieved of soreness and stiffness. There isn't an ache or pain anywhere in my body. I owe it all to Konjola and that is why I endorse this medicine."

Konjola is sold in Greencastle at Owl drug store, and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this section.

AT THE VONCASTLE

"Wings" was almost two years in the making and comes to you as a terrifically valuable property—a picture that not only lived up to all of the colossal hopes and expectations entrusted to it but went away beyond them. In other words: We expected a world of "Wings" and "Wings" has delivered a universe instead.

"Wings" packed tens of thousands every week during its first year at the Criterion theatre, New York City. Recently it celebrated its first birthday on Broadway and standing room was sold out every day during the anniversary week.

"Wings" was made by the world, of the world and for the world. It is truly an international epic of the air. Where bigger box office records are made, "Wings" will break them.

"Wings" in its colossal magnificence performance at the Criterion theatre sounded only the opening note—the first little signal gun—of what the entire world was to expect. The great successes of "The Ten Commandments" and "Beau Geste" are but the stepping stones to such great successes as "Wings."

The picture will play a three day's engagement at the Voncastle starting Monday.

Second And Worse Flu Wave Feared

Colds Attacking Weakened System
Pave Way For New And More
Severe Diseases

Health authorities fear that the present decline in the number of new flu cases may be only a prelude to a second and worse wave.

They point out the importance of keeping free from colds, especially if the system has already been weakened by the flu, as colds at this time are apt to bring on bronchitis, or even pneumonia.

Every cold must be checked immediately. And yet too much "dosing" may upset the digestion which is already disturbed by the toxins of influenza.

Vicks VapoRub is especially valuable here. As it is applied externally, it can be used freely at the first sign of a cold without upsetting the most delicate digestion. Just rub it on the throat and chest at bedtime.

BLIZZARD ARRIVES

(Copyright 1929, By United Press)
ABOARD S. S. AMERICA, Jan. 25. (By Radio To The United Press)—Chief Officer Harry Manning and eight companions from the America faced greatest danger and fought raging seas for almost two hours to rescue 32 members of the crew of the Italian freighter Florida, sinking far off the Virginia Capes.

When we saw them lowered into the heavy sea, we knew that they took their lives in their hands and the story of the rescue more than proved such was the case.

Talking to them today revealed that it was nothing less than a miracle that they returned with the men they set out to rescue from the Florida.

On reaching the crippled ship they found it impossible to get near, owing to her submerged condition and the tremendous surge of the sea. Captain Favalaro and all of his men were ready to leave the ship and most of them were stripped to the waist.

Officer Manning threw out a life line and at last the crew began plunging down the line, one by one, into the raging, cold sea. All were drawn to the lifeboat by their own efforts, slinging to the rope.

One member of the America's rescue crew told me that they were in constant danger of being crushed under the shifting cargo of the Florida. He said when they were near the listing vessel, he looked up at the sloping deck and could see the cargo of lumber had shifted over and was wedged across the deck.

"It was just like looking at an open box of matches," he said, "and every minute we expected one of the great bundles of wood get loose and drop right into the lifeboat. That would have meant 'goodbye' to all of us."

SALARY GRABS

The one thing the Indiana Legislature seems to be stressing from the opening day has been salary increases. First one group of officeholders and then another appears for an increase in salary, and the chances are that before the legislature finishes its sixty days work, they will all have received their increases, whether deserving or not.

The one thing the present day office holder is asking, and the request is not from the low offices, but from the lowest to the highest, is salary increases.

The probabilities are that if the officers now who are asking for salary increases, were given the opportunity, they would all be candidates for re-election at their present salaries.

But it looks as though the increases will all be granted and in addition, new offices will be created, and in the end, the taxpayer will be asked to dig up a little more to meet the additional cost.

INDIANAPOLIS LIVESTOCK

INDIANAPOLIS, Jan. 25. (UP)—Hog prices were steady to mostly 25 cents lower at the Union Stockyards here today. Bulk 150 to 300 lbs. weights sold for $9.75 to $10. Receipts were estimated at 10,500.

In the cattle and calves division slaughter classes were steady and vealers higher. Receipts numbered 500 and 600, respectively. Steers brought $10.50 to $13. Vealers sold for $17.50 to $18 and calves cleared at $7 to $12.

The sheep market was steady.

HEROISM ON HIGH SEAS

That blizzard that the weather man predicted several days ago, was late in reaching this community, but it arrived Friday morning and when it did come, there was no doubt about it being a regular blizzard.

During the early hours of the morning, the wind came up out of the west. It brought a rapid drop in the temperature and during the morning, the wind was aided by snow, which cut like particles of glass, when it hit ones face. The wind penetrated the heaviest clothing and those who were out said it was a very disagreeable morning.
